NOTES

1. In certain cases the thickness of rubber or thermoplastic insulation is indicated by the type designation, e.g. PO-64 indicates the insulation to be 1/64 inch. In other cases the thickness in inches is shown in brackets following the type designation, e.g. C. (1/32).

2. Suitable for damp locations only, in construction having a moisture-resistant braid.

3. In No. 20 AWG size, Types POSJ-64 and POT-64 are rated 125 volts.

4. These types may be provided with heat-resistant rubber insulation rated at 75° C. (167° F.) and this is indicated by a green thread under the insulation or by surface marking. The temperature rating of a non-fibrous jacket is 60°C. (140°F.).

5. The jackets on Types HSJ, AFS, AFSO, AFSJ, and AFSJO are limited to 60°C. (140°F.); the 90°C. (194°F.) limit applying only to the conductor insulation.

6. The cotton or rayon braid on Types AFC and GTFC and the cotton or rayon outer covering on Types AFPO, AFPD, GTFPO, and GTFPD are limited to 90°C. (194°F.); the 125°C. (257°F.) rating applying only to the conductor insulation.

7. The cotton or rayon outer covering on Type PDT is limited to 90°C. (194°F.); the 105°C. (221°F.) rating applying only to the conductor insulation on which it is surface marked.

8. When Types POT-64, POT-32, SPT-3, SVT, SJT and ST, are provided with thermoplastic conductor insulation and thermoplastic jacket material, both rated at 105°C. (221°F.) this overall temperature rating is surface marked on the jacket in addition to the type designation. Type SPT-3 may also be provided with either 75°C. (167°F.) or 90°C. (194°F.) conductor insulation and jacket material and this overall rating is similarly surface-marked on the jacket.

9. The conductor insulation and jacket of Type HSJO have a temperature rating of 90°C. (194°F.) except that when the jacket is exposed to oil, the temperature rating of the jacket is limited to 60°C. (140°F.).

10. These types may be used in raceways, other than cabletroughs, as permitted in Section 16.

11. When Types SVO, SJO, SO, SWO, and SGO are provided with conductor insulation and jacket material, both rated at 90°C. (194°F.), this overall temperature rating is surface-marked on the jacket in addition to the type designation. When ethylene propylene is used as the insulation, "EP" is also surface marked on the jacket.

12. Suitable for use under Rule 38-006 (2).

13. Suitable for use under Rule 38-006 (2) when provided with flame-retardant and moisture-resistant braid.

14. Dryer and range cables are for use only in approved domestic dryer and range power supply cords not exceeding 6 feet in length. These cables are not for sale to the public for general use.

15. When exposed to oil, the temperature rating of the jacket of Types SVO, SVT, SJO, SJT, AFSJO, HSJO, SO, ST, SGO, SWO, AFSO, SOW, DRO, and EO is limited to 60°C. (140°F.) regardless of the temperature rating of the conductor insulation.

16. Types SJOW, SJTW, SOW and STW are surface printed to show the type designation and the word "outdoor".

17. When Types SVT or SJT are provided with thermoplastic conductor insulation and thermoplastic jacket material, both rated at 90°C. (194°F.), this overall temperature rating is surface-marked on the jacket in addition to the type designation.

18. Types GTF, TEW, SEWF-2, and SEW-2 may be used in lighting fixture raceways in accordance with Subrule 30-028 (2)(d)(ii).

NOTES: [1]A maximum copper sheath temperature of 250C is permissible for mineral-insulated cable, provided the temperature at the terminations does not exceed that specified in Tables 1 and 2. Any protective covering provided shall be suitable for the applicable sheath temperature.

[2]Type TECK cable may be used where the armour and/or outer covering is suitable for exposure to the weather. Thermoplastic outer coverings having improved low temperature properties suitable for installation at temperatures down to minus 40F are printed "TECK-minus 40F".

[3]May be used where exposed to heat, grease, or corrosive fumes, if suitable for the corrosive condition.

[4]For bare or tinned copper conductors having individual strands smaller in diameter than 0.015 inch, the maximum allowable conductor temperature is 150C (320F).

[5]When any of these types have a thermoplastic insulation or covering suitable for installation and use at temperatures down to minus 40F, they are surface printed with the type designation followed by "minus 40F".

[6]Conductors or cable assemblies acceptable for direct earth burial may be used, by special permission, for underground services in accordance with Rule 6-006.

[7]Types TW and TWU when provided with a nylon jacket are also approved for use where adverse conditions may exist, such as in oil refineries and around gasoline storage or pump areas (e.g. where subjected to alkaline conditions in the presence of petroleum solvents).

[8]Types suitable for use in wet locations may also be used in dry or damp locations.
Single conductor Types RW75 and RWU75, shielded or unshielded, may have a thermoplastic (pvc) covering.

[9]Type NMW-10 cable is not suitable for use in aerial spans.

[10]Types having silicone rubber insulation are surface marked with the type designation followed by "silicone" e.g. R90 (silicone).

[11]Types having cross-linked polyethylene insulation are surface marked with the type designation followed by "X-Link", e.g. R90(X-Link).

[12]Type R90 silicone may be used to connect equipment which is marked as requiring supply conductors having insulation suitable for a temperature up to 125C (257F).

DISCIPLINE

4. The code applies to every police force.

5.—(1) Where a constable or other police officer is charged with an offence against the code, the charge shall be in writing on a charge sheet and a true copy of the charge sheet shall be served, as soon as is practicable, upon the person charged, together with a statement of the allegations upon which the charge is founded.

(2) The charge sheet shall be prepared in accordance with Form 1 but may be varied to suit the case, and forms to the like effect shall be deemed to be good, valid and sufficient.

(3) The charge sheet shall be signed by the chief of police, or an officer designated by him, and shall show the date upon which it is so signed.

(4) All charges shall, where practicable, be included in one charge sheet, but where it is considered desirable the charges may be recorded in separate charge sheets.

Mr. Speaker then said:—

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR:

We, Her Majesty's most dutiful and faithful subjects, the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, in Session assembled, approach Your Honour with sentiments of unfeigned devotion and loyalty to Her Majesty's person and Government, and humbly beg to present for Your Honour's acceptance a Bill intituled, "An Act for granting to Her Majesty certain sums of money for the Public Service for the fiscal year ending the 31st day of March, 1970."

To this Act the Royal Assent was announced by the Clerk of the Legislative Assembly in the following words:—

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED BY FRANK FOGG, PRINTER TO THE QUEEN'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY
TORONTO, CANADA

Postage paid in cash at Third Class Rate, Permit No. C-67

"The Honourable the Lieutenant Governor doth thank Her Majesty's dutiful and loyal Subjects, accept their benevolence and assent to this Bill in Her Majesty's name."

The Honourable the Lieutenant Governor was then pleased to deliver the following gracious speech:—

Mr. Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario:

As this Second Session of the Twenty-eighth Parliament of Ontario concludes, I should like to express the appreciation of the people of Ontario for the diligence and energy with which you have pursued an extremely heavy and rewarding legislative program.

By all measures, this Session which began on November 19th, 1968 and which is now in its thirteenth month, is unique. It has extended over the longest span of time and included more actual days and hours of sitting than any previous Session. In addition, this has been one of the most productive Sessions in Ontario history. More government and private legislative proposals have been placed before you for consideration than in any previous Session.

You have considered and approved measures and propositions which assure the continued vigorous and dynamic growth of Ontario. By your actions, the residents of Ontario are assured a richer and more fulfilling life. Equally important, you have conducted your deliberations within the context of the broader interests of Canada.

During the course of this Session, a great many events important to our history and progress were observed. These included the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the birth of the Honourable George Brown, a Father of Confederation from Ontario; the one hundredth anniversary of Ontario's representation in Great Britain, at which our beloved Sovereign presided; the sixtieth anniversary of the formation of the Ontario Provincial Police Force; and the tenth anniversary of the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway. We were honoured to have with us in Ontario during the course of this Session His Royal Highness Prince Philip.

While your deliberations were being conducted in this House, the leaders of all of the governments of Canada met on three occasions to examine the constitutional development of our country and to consider changes which undoubtedly will have a profound effect upon the future of Canada. It is apparent from the recent discussions in Ottawa that, while a good deal of work has been accomplished, the process of achieving a new constitutional instrument for Canada will require much discussion and examination. However, the Government is most optimistic that we shall achieve the ultimate objective of a stronger, more united and progressive country, which will be increasingly more meaningful to the individual. This is an objective worthy of our utmost effort and to which the Government is totally and unequivocally committed.

A significant step forward in the process of strengthening our country occurred when the Governments of the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec concluded an educational and cultural exchange agreement. It is the first intergovernmental agreement in Canada dealing specifically with language and culture.

A major event during the course of this Session was the opening of the Ontario Centre of Science and Technology. Already this Science Centre, the Province's contribution to the people of Canada to observe our first one hundred years as a country, is recognized as one of the finest in the world. While legislation was being considered in this Chamber, the presence of the people of Ontario was growing rapidly at the site of the 1970 world exposition in Osaka, Japan, where construction of our Ontario Pavilion has been completed ahead of schedule. I am sure the Honourable Members are also fully aware that Ontario Place, where the vigour and spirit of the people of Ontario will find further expression, is rapidly rising on the Toronto waterfront.

The people of Ontario played an active role in the stimulating process of debate which surrounds the major issues which face us. They were represented by you, their elected representatives, in the deliberations which were conducted in this Chamber. They appeared voluntarily before committees of the Legislature. They participated in public discussions with members of the Executive Council at conferences held across Ontario to discuss taxation, assessment, regional government and the needs of the residents of Northern Ontario. These conferences dealt in large measure with the white paper proposals for the reform of the provincial-municipal structure of taxation presented by the Honourable Treasurer of Ontario during the Budget Address.

There were significant changes in our municipalities during the course of this Session. On January 1st, the Regional Municipality of Ottawa-Carleton began to function. The Regional Municipality of Niagara came into being in October and will become fully functional on January 1st, 1970. Also brought into being during this Session was the new City of Thunder Bay which on January 1st, 1970 will carry forward with it the heritage of the cities of Port Arthur and Fort William and the adjacent municipalities of Neebing and Shuniah. In addition, you have before you the recommendations of commissioners and committees dealing with the future of local government in the Hamilton-Burlington-Wentworth area, in the Muskoka area, and at the District level in Northern Ontario.

Reports of Commissioners and Committees which had been asked to inquire into a broad range of subjects were presented to you. Among these were the second report of the McRuer Inquiry into Civil Rights, the Report of the Royal Commission on Atlantic Acceptance Corporation Limited, the studies of the Ontario Law Reform Commission, and the Report on Religious Education in the Public Schools of Ontario. The reports of the committees which surveyed the cultural life of Franco-Ontarians, farm assessment and taxation, the sale and distribution of fruits and vegetables in Ontario and the future of our forest industry were also presented to you. We remind Honourable Members of the important contributions made by various select committees which reported to this House during the session on a variety of subjects dealing with such topics as House rules, taxation and election laws. Other reports received by the House dealt with mutual funds and investment contracts, the operation of credit unions and collective bargaining within the public service of Ontario.

The sound and far-sighted advice contained in the first report of the Inquiry into Civil Rights was reflected in all legislation placed before you by the Government. The studies of the Onario Law Reform Commission also contributed to major legislative initiatives.

There were two important developments in the procedures in this Chamber. One of these was the first television coverage of the Legislature in Session during the presentation of the Budget Address by the Honourable Treasurer of Ontario and the subsequent addresses of the non-governmental party leaders. The second was the experimental adoption of revised rules during the latter part of the Session. I am pleased to learn that these changes have been generally accepted by all Members and in practice have improved the ordering of business.

The legislative program placed before you by the Executive Council of Ontario was substantial in content, equitable in application to all segments of our population and positive in the improvement of the quality of the daily life of the people of Ontario.

An advance of major significance in the development of a comprehensive program of health care was the establishment of the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan which provides physician services and a broad range of health care to all residents of the Province.

Much of the time of the House was devoted to the requirements of those of our society who live in our cities. Proposals dealing with urban life, housing, control of air and water pollution, transportation, assessment and finance were placed before you.

The passage of amendments to The Landlord and Tenant Act provided a new measure of equity for the rapidly-expanding proportion of our population who rent accommodation.

The implementation in December, 1968 of The Expropriation Act introduced concepts into the expropriation laws of this Province which have given new and significant rights to the landowner to ensure fair treatment.

Efficient transportation in all its forms is vital to the growth of our Province and is especially crucial to life in our cities. The concern of the Government with the provision of transportation services and facilities is demonstrated in the methodical research, which is now underway, into transportation problems and new concepts of mass transportation. It is anticipated that far-reaching benefits to many of the large urban centres in Ontario will result from the decision to embark on three new public transit demonstration projects in the heavily-populated areas, north, east and west of Toronto. In addition to these projects, the Government has materially increased its financial assistance to the municipalities for road and subway construction and to enable them to undertake their own transportation studies.

To improve the quality of our environment, legislative action was taken to control emissions from automobiles and iron foundries. Following careful study, the Government ordered a general prohibition of the use of the pesticide DDT. Further assistance to enable small municipalities to finance and extend water and sewage treatment facilities was provided.

Also approved was the re-enactment of The Assessment Act under which the Province will undertake the assessment activities formerly carried out by the municipalities. This is necessary to achieve a system of assessment across Ontario that is uniform and equitable and is an essential first step toward the achievement of an improved provincial-municipal system of taxation for our Province.

Among the most dramatic developments in the the field of education during the course of this Session was the first year of operation by the new consolidated school boards. The county system is now demonstrating its ability to provide greater equality and enriched educational opportunities for all students in Ontario regardless of where they may live. The Government advocated the adoption of the continuous process approach throughout the formal educational system, with emphasis on a varied curriculum and flexible, individual time tables.

During the course of this Session, approval was given to amendments to the charters of Carleton and McMaster Universities and the University of Windsor, reflecting the trend towards greater participation by faculty and students in university government. Provision was also made for faculty and students to be part of the governing council of The Ontario College of Art.

A further important development was the appointment of a commission to advise the Government on long-term plans for all aspects of post-secondary education.

Particularly intensive public discussion arose out of two legislative proposals of great significance to all of the people of Ontario. The passage of Bills dealing with the care and treatment of animals and the provision of animals for use in medical research will properly serve and safeguard pets and their owners. These enactments will also assure that the requirements of medical research and the training of doctors and other personnel involved in Ontario's growing requirement for the provision of medical services will be well served.

Passage of legislation dealing with business corporations was a major step forward in the Government's approach to the rights, obligations and protection of shareholders and directors.

Amendments to The Toronto Stock Exchange Act provide for the election of two public directors, thereby ensuring that The Toronto Stock Exchange will reflect the interests of the investing public.

A far-reaching policy initiative which you approved and which will encourage new industrial activity in Ontario was contained in amendments to The Mining Act. Under this policy, it was established as a statutory principle that ores mined in Ontario must be processed in Canada. Amendments to The Mining Tax Act provided deductible allowances to encourage more mining exploration.

The Government's program of financial assistance to industry, which has greatly expanded and diversified the Province's economy, was reviewed and amended to provide additional help to small communities so that they may obtain an increased share of industrial development. The revised program of forgivable loans will be of particular assistance to communities in Northern and Eastern Ontario.

New principles and concepts were introduced in The Mechanics' Lien Act which will greatly facilitate the financing and protection of people engaged in the construction field.

A Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal was established to provide a board of review for those applying for licenses under Ontario's Consumer Protection legislation and to serve as an advisory body to the Minister of Financial and Commercial Affairs.

Among the initiatives which you approved was an expansion of the extension services of the Department of Agriculture to provide more intensive counselling to farmers on the use of credit, farm management and rural development. Another was the establishment of boards for the orderly marketing of fish. Indications are that one of the first boards established has resulted in higher prices being paid to fishermen in Northwestern Ontario.

Enacted during this Session was The Law Enforcement Compensation Amendment Act which extended compensation to the victims of crime in Ontario. This legislation will become a source of great assistance to those who suffer as the result of violence committed during a criminal offence.

The extension of The Age Discrimination Act to include employees of the Crown and its agencies was further evidence of the Government's determination to end discrimination in employment based on age.

Further important steps were taken to preserve our heritage. The Ontario Heritage Foundation Act was broadened to include the preservation of property of recreational, aesthetic or scenic importance. In addition, during this Session the Museum of the Upper Lakes was opened on Nancy Island at Wasaga Beach where the history of exploration and commercial utilization of the Great Lakes waterway are dramatically displayed.

In declaring prorogued this Second Session of the Twenty-eighth Parliament of the Province of Ontario, I am pleased to note that you have scrutinized and approved the spending estimates of the various departments of the Government and have found the affairs of the Government in excellent order.

I pray that under the guidance of Divine Providence the people of Ontario will continue to enjoy a full and rewarding life.

In our Sovereign's name, I thank you.

The Provincial Secretary then said:—

Mr. Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly:

It is the will and pleasure of the Honourable the Lieutenant Governor that this Legislative Assembly be prorogued and this Legislative Assembly is accordingly prorogued.

RODERICK LEWIS, Q.C.,
Clerk of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario.
